

INT HALLWAY DAY

Robin and Ted are stopped at drinking fountain. Troy comes up to them.

TROY

So Te, ah Theodore, aren't you going to introduce me to your friend.

THEODORE

Not without a gun pressed against my head.

TROY

You're such a comedian.

ROBIN

Who is this?

TROY

My name's Troy. I'm the quarterback on the football team.

ROBIN

Is that your primary quality?

TROY

I like to think it's my infectious smile and my rugged but pretty boy looks. And a killer body.

ROBIN

I'll have to take your word on those. Did you have a purpose interrupting our session at the drinking fountain?

TROY

I just thought I should invite you to our football game tonight. We love to see all of our fans out there.

7.

ROBIN

That's cool, but all the rest of your fans can actually see the game.

TROY

You could hear the cheers and I'd be able to see you. That would motivate me to an even better performance.

ROBIN

Sorry, I'll be home tonight studying for a chemistry test on Monday.

TROY

Bummer. Oh, well, maybe another night. Wait, how about homecoming? You don't have to be able to see to feel a pair of strong and caring arms around you at the dance.

ROBIN

Octopus arms no doubt. No thanks. And by the way, the thanks is just automatic. I'm not really grateful that you lowered yourself to ask me to homecoming. Goodbye.

She grabs Ted's arm and pulls him away. He corrects their course.